Vol. 3—No. 80 GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1923 THREE CENTS

Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Why Not Adjust Facilities to Needs of City Departments?

BY the exercising of the option held by the Glendale Rotary club on Haynes canyon, the Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills council are assured a camp site for all time.

Haynes canyon is a tract consisting of 80 acres of wild land and is located near Tujunga. It will make an ideal location for a permanent camp for the Boy Scouts.

The Rotary club is to be commended on its spirit shown in this purchase, for not only does it display a generous act, but one that will be of great benefit to our future citizenship.

* * *

GLENDALE has been lax in her duty to the youth of this city, for restrictions have been put on their activities, while nothing has been done towards providing proper facilities to take care of the excess energy of youth.

The needs for a community center are being demonstrated daily. Our rapid growth in population is making it imperative for us to make some provision for grounds to play on. The present generation does not have the vacant lots that we used to have. And even if they did, organized play is much more desirable. With an organization operating that has a paid secretary already on the job, all that is needed to put the proposition over big is the ground and building facilities.

The rapid progress being made by the contractor on the new high school plant almost assures us of its use by next September. If this proves to be a fact, part of the old high school plant could undoubtedly be used in some manner next summer and fall.

* * *

SUGGESTIONS have been made from time to time on the possibility of using the old high school plant as a civic center, and it seems to us as if this plan could be worked out. Now that the city school bonds have been voted, the grammar schools will probably not need the high school buildings, as planned before the election.

* * *

A SUGGESTED plan was given us some time ago which might be feasible. This plan was for the city to buy the present high school plant and turn it into a civic center, both for business and recreation purposes. Move the present city offices to the administration building. Sell the present city hall. The proceeds of the sale would go a long ways toward financing the high school.

* * *

THE money derived through the sale to the city of the high school plant could be used in establishing a junior high school on the grounds recently purchased by the city school system. This site is located in the northwest section of Glendale and as the surrounding territory is building up very rapidly, some provision to take care of the educational needs must be made.

* * *

THE price the school authorities are willing to sell the high school plant for is not known, but as it belongs to the citizens, suitable arrangements could undoubtedly be made. Since Eagle Rock has voted to go out of the union high school district, the plan can be more easily carried out.

* * *

IN a nutshell, by the suggested plan Glendale would gain a city hall of sufficient size to take care of the growing needs, a civic center and a junior high school, all without costing the taxpayer one cent.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PLANS SERIES OF SONG MEETINGS

The music committee of Glendale Community Service that had charge of arranging the Easter services, which could not be held on account of the rain, is very much pleased with the harmonious co-operation which was extended.

The music committee is planning to arrange for community sings to be held every two or three weeks. After a few meetings other communities will be asked to come and take charge of the evening's program and the Glendale people will do likewise by visiting other nearby cities.

MRS. TOLL TO HEAD WOMEN OF DISTRICT

Unopposed for President of Cal. Federation of Women's Clubs

MRS. JONES SPEAKS

Declares Men's Prejudices Make Female Politically Ineffective

[By Associated Press]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, April 3.—Today's issue at the twenty-second annual convention of the Los Angeles district of the California Federation of Women's Clubs is the election of officers. The chief contest is for the office of vice-president, with Mrs. J. M. Mathews of Los Angeles opposing Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer of Santa Monica. A treasurer and secretary also are to be named. Mrs. Charles H. Toll of Glendale is unopposed for the office of president.

Men's prejudices towards women are keeping women from full effectiveness in politics, declared Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, Glendale delegate, in addressing the convention. The women in congress have been unable to carry out any progressive program because of the antagonism, she said.

This morning sessions were devoted to reports of county presidents with Mrs. John C. Urquhart, Los Angeles, district president, presiding with Mrs. William A. Fitzgerald, state president. Mrs. Mollie Bloom Flagg spoke on "Country Life," and Mrs. Robert J. Burdette on "The New Challenge." The annual federation banquet will be held tonight.

BUSINESS BOOM IS SOUND, SAYS HOOVER

Good Reason to Expect the Continuation of Prosperity

[By Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The country's present business boom is on a sound foundation, Secretary Hoover said today, and there is good reason to expect a long continuance of prosperity.

"The business condition is marked just now by the fact that the goods are not accumulating," the secretary said. "Although production is at a high point, consumption is equalling it. Goods are moving continuously through the channels of distribution and are not piling up in a way that might indicate a check to business activity would be possible.

"Likewise prices are not showing the runaway tendency that we witnessed during war time and immediately after. Although economic forecasting is always hazardous, I can see nothing on the business horizon which indicates that reverses are due."

LETTER CARRIERS HAVE GOOD TIME

That the grand Easter ball given by the Letter Carriers' association of the Glendale postoffice was a decided success was conceded by the vast crowd which attended last night at the Citizens' building dance hall. More than 150 couples were in attendance. All were profuse in their expressions of delight at this opening ball given by the postmen, who were showered with congratulations on every side and feel highly elated at the success of the affair.

Chairman A. S. Wood was on the job every moment and had the committee men in their appointed places. Jerry's Jazz Hounds again demonstrated their popularity with the excellent numbers rendered. A number of surprise features were sprung during the evening and refreshments were served. There was a larg delegation present from Hollywood and Los Angeles.

THE WEATHER

Sacramento valley: Unsettled with probably rain in north portion tonight; Wednesday fair; gentle southerly winds.

CITY TO CONSIDER CLEAN UP DAY MOVEMENT

Other Matters Come Before the Council at Last Night's Meeting

The matter of ascertaining the number of trucks that would be necessary to carry on a general clean-up day in Glendale and also the cost of the trucks was referred to City Manager Reeves by the Glendale city council last night.

The matter brought to the attention of the council again by a committee consisting of George Karr, Col. Everington, J. I. Wernette, Attorney Burt Woodard and Mr. Johnson, representing various organizations o fthe city. Mr. Karr stated that the different societies and clubs of the city were back of this move and that he hoped the council would decide on the action.

Councilman Davis stated that he understood Mr. Karr, as chairman of the civics committee of the chamber of commerce, was going to submit to the council an estimate of the number of trucks to be used, the cost for same, and all other details. It was the chamber's civics committee that was pushing this thing, he said, and he thought it was up to the chamber to arrange the details. As it is, he stated, all the chamber will do is suggest it to the council and unload the work on that body, and let the council do the best it could to carry the thing out.

Mr. Karr stated that all the city will have to do is to gather the rubbish away after it has been moved to the curbing, the publicity and all other details to be taken care of by the civics committees from the various organizations of the city.

Upon suggestion of Mayor Robinson the matter was referred to the city manager.

The city of Glendale was authorized last night to bid on the installation of the ornamental lights on Maryland avenue between Harvard and Wilson. Bids for this work are to be called within a short time.

Bids for the improvement of Gilbert street were received and on motion referred to the city engineer for checking and report.

Bids for the improvement of Magnolia avenue were received and on motion referred to the city engineer for checking and report.

There was one protest against the improvement of the first alley east of Louise street between Broadway and Harvard, but as this was a minority protest it was denied, and the next step in this work was ordered taken.

As there were no protests against the improvement of Dixon and Lafayette streets the next step in this work was ordered taken.

Maps of tracts Nos. 6283 and 6294 were approved.

The Guy M. Rush company was granted a permit to erect a banner over Broadway in front of the sanitarium property.

A request was made by J. M. Bolen that the city give a 30-foot strip of its property on Tenth street for the extension of Raymond avenue for street purposes. He would, he said, do likewise. This matter was referred to the city attorney.

The city attorney was instructed to draft the necessary proceedings for the changing of Jackson street from 250 feet south of California to Doran street to a first class residential district.

A resolution was passed ordering the improvement to be made on Ruberta avenue and other streets.

A resolution was adopted ordering the improvement of Ard Even and Ben Lomond drive.

POLICE AND FIREMEN'S BENEFIT ASS'N. MEETS

The regular meeting of the Glendale Police and Firemen's Relief association was held last night with Detective Sergeant Royle presiding. Preliminary plans were made for a smoker and banquet to be held the latter part of April. This will be in charge of the entertainment committee, of which Capt. Ralph Dodsworth is chairman. The remainder of the meeting was given over to routine business.

SCHOOL BOARD PAPERS ARE BEING APPROVED

Superintendent Richardson D. White states he has been advised by the county counsel that the papers in conection with the bonds for city schools are in very good condition and he sees no reason why they should not be o. k.d by bond attorneys. He stated he would certify them to the county supervisors Monday. The advertising will be done by the supervisors, but meanwhile the board of education will have plans made and contracts prepared ready for execution ready to be let by the first of June, when it is expected the bonds will have been sold.

$400,000 HOTEL ORDERED ON ARTHUR LINDLEY PLANS BY ADVANCEMENT FOLK

Designs and Specifications Are Accepted at Meeting With Glendale Architect and His Associate, Charles R. Selkirk

THE WAY IS CLEARED FOR CONSTRUCTION

Five Stories High, Hostelry Will Be Raised Over Store Front and to Contain Big Basement for Storage Purposes; to Cover 225 Feet on Broadway

The design and specifications for the new hotel to be erected at the corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway, submitted by Arthur G. Lindley, architectural engineer, and his associate, Charles R. Selkirk, were accepted by the hotel committee of the East Glendale hotel organization, at a meeting held last night.

The lot on which this building will be located came out of escrow yesterday and everything is ready for the building. These plans call for a building to cost about $400,000. The structure will be five stories in height, this comprising four stories of apartments and one of stores, with the basement for storage and other purposes.

The building will be class A in design. It will cover 225 feet on Broadway and 140 feet on Glendale avenue. The main entrance will be on Broadway, and there will be an auxiliary entrance on Glendale avenue.

The Spanish style of architecture will be used throughout. The building will have reinforced concrete frame with curtain walls of hollow tile. It will have a cement stucco exterior.

The hotel will be fireproof. All rooms and apartments will have outside lighting and ventilation. Above the second floor on the Broadway side there will be two open-air courts, the floor of these being roof gardens for the occupants of the hotel.

The building will be equipped throughout with hot and circulating ice water. There will be automatic electric refrigerators in each kitchen. Above the refrigerators there will be cold air closets. Every living room will have a fireplace and will be equipped with radiant heater; all of them will be efficiently ventilated. There will be a bathroom connected with each room or apartment and all of these will be of tile. Above each bathtub will be a shower.

On the first floor of this building there will be six stores, each having 36-foot frontage. The main entrance to the hotel, on Broadway, will be 30 feet in width and 16 feet deep, there being seats and a fireplace at either end. Immediately behind the entrance will be the lobby, 30 by 50 feet in size. This will be modern in every way and will be equipped with overstuffed furniture. There will be an incinerator on every floor, the waste heat to be used for heating the water.

At the rear of the vestibule there will be two electrically operated passenger elevators for the accommodation on all floors. At the right side of the elevators there will be a broad staircase leading to the second floor. From the second floor to the floors above there will be two stairways, one at either side of the building.

On the main floor at the right of the lobby will be the ladies' waiting room, beyond which will be the spacious dining room which will accommodate 300 guests at a sitting. This will occupy almost all of the eastern end of the building. At the rear of the dining room there will be a freight elevator.

At the left or west side of the lobby will be the writing room and the men's toilet apartment. At this side also there will be a first-class barber shop. The hotel and private offices will be in the lobby at the side of the elevator and the telephone booths will be beneath the staircase.

The four upper floors will be taken up by single rooms and apartments. In all there will be 278 rooms. There will be 64 single rooms with baths. Some of these will be hotel rooms, while others will be equipped as bachelor apartments with disappearing beds.

There will be 84 two-room apartments, these consisting of living room, kitchen, dressing room and bath. Eight apartments will have three rooms, consisting of living room with disappearing bed, bedroom, kitchen, dressing room and bath. There will also be eight four-room apartments, consisting of living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bath.

On each floor there will be 16,000 square feet of floor space, this bringing the floor space for the entire building, including basement, up to 96,000 square feet. The lot has an area of 21,600 square feet, so that 74.8 per cent of the lot is covered with building and every available inch of the building is put to good use.

On the roof there will be an open-air roof garden and dancing hall and an open-air dining room. The basement will be taken up by billiard rooms, bowling alleys and storage rooms for the stores.

The building is being so constructed that four additional stories may be added when they become necessary.

A. Ambrosini, 146 South Jackson street, left for St. Paul, Minn., this morning. The purchase of Mr. Ambrosini's property at the northeast corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway by the hotel organization was completed yesterday. Mr. Ambrosini is interested in the Forest cemetery in the eastern city.

Mr. Ambrosini stated this morning that he expects to return to Glendale next fall, when he hopes to occupy one of the apartments in the new hotel that will soon be started on the corner of Glendale and Broadway.

COMMUNITY CHEST ADVOCATED AT CREDIT MEET

Owen Emery Brings Plan to the Attention of the Members

The Community Chest for Glendale was discussed at the meeting of the Glendale Credit association yesterday, and it is likely the association will get behind this movement and help make it a success.

President Owen Emery said: "We have many organizations in Glendale, and each has a work to perform, but the greatest good is not always done for the reason that there is duplication of effort and not the hearty co-operation necessary to make a success of any enterprise.

"I want the members of this organization to study the Community Chest proposition and be prepared to deal with it in an intelligent way as it will come up for our consideration soon. I think that one or more members should be selected from each organization in town to form an executive committee to handle the community chest work. I also believe that a finance committee should be selected, composed of good men whose duty it would be to determine the amount of aid to be given when occasion demands. In this way the work of the Community Chest would be handled in a manner to assure the very best possible results. There would be strong co-operation and no lost effort in the accomplishment of a great work.

"If we had this kind of co-operation our chamber of commerce would be able to do better work, and an institution which is vital to the interests of the community would be doing greater work for its upbuilding. There is room for every organization in Glendale, but I feel the community is not getting the most out of these organizations for lack of concentrated effort and co-operation."

DEBATE QUESTION SELECTED FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Clash of Glendale and Monrovia to Be Held at South Pasadena

At a conference held in Alhambra Monday to determine the question for the championship debate between Glendale and Monrovia teams ,of the Central League which is to be held on the neutral ground of South Pasadena May 18, four debaters accompanied by Miss Corry, debating coach, represented Glendale. They were met by an equal number of debaters from Monrovia and all agreed upon the question proposed, viz., "Resolved, that the peace and safety of Europe demand the destruction of the national political independence of the Turkish people." Glendale acquiesced in the assignment to it of the negative side.

Trials for the championship team will be held next Wednesday, and so great is the interest because this contest will decide the championship of the league, that all who have had any debating experience are participating in the tryout.

Interest in the debate is far reaching, not only because it will settle the championship but also because the league officers have announced that if $100 is remaining in its treasury, it will be divided into two scholarship prizes which will be awarded to the speaker on each side making the highest score. One of these scholarship prizes will therefore come to Glendale.

Alhambra has announced it will send a delegation of 100 to the debate, a large number will come from Monrovia, and it is expected that all the schools belonging to the league will be well represented. Alhambra will provide the judges and South Pasadena the presiding officer.

The Central League is also planning for a "jolly-up" for April 21 to consist of a dinner at the Bull Pen in Los Angeles followed by an afternoon at the Orpheum, the party including all who have taken part in the Central League debates, the coaches and debating commissioners.

A THREE PURPOSE PAINT ENTERS GLENDALE

"To satisfactorily fireproof linseed oil paint is something that many have attempted, but so far as records prove all have failed but one. That one is General Fernando Somoza, a resident of Oakland, a noted chemist, who after years of experimenting and testing, has at last produced a fireproof linseed oil paint, the fire resisting qualities of which are almost unbelievable," says Lexie Allison, local paint dealer.

"The fireproofing qualities of this product are produced by a process of treating the oil in such a way as to make it fireproof, yet not destroy its elasticity nor viscosity. This paint has stood the time test in all climates from the hottest to the coldest, and from the dampest to the dryest, and has proved to be a wonderful paint for all purposes, in addition to its marvelous fire resisting qualities, which must be seen to be appreciated. The patents covering this process of making fireproof linseed oil paint are now controlled by the Fire Retardent Products Co., of Oakland, Calif., and whose Los Angeles distributors are located at 1000 South Hill street."

'THE CHRISTIAN' IS APPROVED BY HALL CAINE

The value of motion picture subtitles is the subject of frequent discussion. Some contend that the perfect picture will have no reading matter in it whatsoever, but the more general belief is that the titles, if well written, add greatly to the finished production.

An interesting contribution to the subject is made by Sir Hall Caine, author of "The Christian," made by the Goldwyn company under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, which came to the Glendale theatre on Sunday for four days. In a memorandum to the scenario department Sir Hall Caine said:

"The titles in "The Christian" film will be of the highest importance. They should be very carefully written, and be of two kinds.

"1. The super-titles, which carry the symbolism of the picture—that John Storm sets out to live as Christ lived and is broken to pieces both from within and from without—by his human love and by the hard facts of existence. There should be about four of such titles in the course of the picture.

"2. The second kind of title sholud be entirely confined to the elucidation of the story and contain no symbolic significance. They should be very simple, where they are intended to explain the action, and very straightforward and natural where they express the emotions of the characters. The latter should be taken (as nearly as possible literally) from the book of 'The Christian' or from the play.

"The great dangers of the titles are (1) that they may be in phraseology used commonly in America, but never in Great Britain, and (2) that they should be anything but simple and human, that they should be super-sentimental, and suggestive of religious cant.

"Remember that John Storm is intended to be above all things a man, a fanatic, but never for a moment a religious milksop. He is quite capable of strong language, such as 'damn' (under stress of emotion, indignation, etc.) and of lifting his fist and knocking down a rascal, but never of using the language of the namby-pamby English curate. Please bear this in mind always, and make him speak accordingly. If it is desired I shall be quite willing to write the titles myself when the picture is shown to me."

GOVERNMENT SEEKS MORE OIL PROMOTERS

[By Associated Press]

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 3.—Provided with warrants which they had been unable to serve yesterday, federal agents today sought oil promoters accused by the government of defrauding the public out of several million dollars. Sixteen arrests were made yesterday. A dozen more are expected today. The specific charge is using the mails to defraud. The alleged fraud, according to the federal prosecutors, consisted in misrepresenting oil prospects in order to attract investment dollars.

Among those arrested yesterday and who gave bond was S. E. J. Cox, formerly of New York and Houston, who was tried in federal court at Houston in connection with his General Oil company operations.

Attorneys for Dr. Frederick Cook, arctic explorer, informed U. S. Marshal Elderidge today that their client would furnish bond today.

RUSSIAN CATHOLIC CHURCH HEAD IS EXECUTED

Meets Death Before the Firing Squad on March 31

[By Associated Press]

MOSCOW, April 3.—Vicar General Butchkavitch has been executed.

The Pravda says the execution occurred on March 31. The newspaper Izvesta asserts "The sentence of death on Butchkavitch, whose reprieve was refused, has been carried out."

Monsignor Butchkavitch met death before a firing squad.

The Izvesta prints the announcement on an inside page under a 1-line head in its court news department. In the Pravda the execution is noted briefly without comment in a column of local news.

Judging from what happened in previous cases, it is thought probable that after the executive committee had refused to reprieve him, he was removed from the prison where he and his fellow prisoners had been held to the prison for the condemned and that there, after the death sentence had been read, he was executed. This is the general procedure in the swift and quiet carrying out of the death penalty in Russia.

Constantin Butchkavitch, vicar general of the Roman Catholic church in Russia, was sentenced to death on March 26, after he and sixteen other prelates, including Archbishop Zepliak, had been found guilty of opposing the soviet government. The Russian central executive committee, meeting last Thursday night to consider appeals made in behalf of the ecclesiatics, denied clemency in the case of Monsignor Butchkavitch, asserting that he "had used his position as a priest to carry on a direct and active state treason." The committee at the same time commuted to ten years' imprisonment the death sentence imposed on the archbishop.

The prelates were charged in general with carrying on widespread propaganda against the Russian government and were alleged to have incited the people against the communist regime. Maxim Litvinoff was quoted as saying that the action against the defendants was political rather than religious. In reaching its decision to commute the sentence given Archbishop Zepliak, the central executive committee said it had decided to modify the decree of the court because a "certain backward element of the Catholic citizens of soviet Russia" might consider the sentence as directed against the priests and their religion.

The trial of the prelates began on March 21. They were charged specifically as follows: First, with opposing the decree separating the church and the state; second, with opposing sequestration of church treasurers and third, with engaging in a campaign of agitation among the Catholic clergy and parishioners in the hope that the churches might be closed, thus inconveniencing the soviet government before the vatican and impairing the terms of the Riga treaty with Poland.

END OF THE TASK CELEBRATED BY COMMITTEE

Supervisors of Work of Erecting the Christian Church Hold Banquet

The members of the building committee of Central Christian Church, their wives and husbands, as might be, and a few others who had been connected with the building enterprise, met in a fellowship dinner in the social hall of the church last evening to enjoy a bounteous repast with chicken as the center of attraction, and lived over in pleasant retrospect the trials and struggles which finally culminated in the completion of the beautiful building in which the congregation now worships. Rev. C. A. Cole, who at the very outset of his pastorate in Glendale a little more than six years ago, conceived the idea of a new church building that should fitly house the congregation and honor the growing city we all love so well, presided. After all had satisfied the cravings of the inner man, he arose and, reviewing the events that led up to the happy consummation of the desires of the congregation, expressed his gratification at the unswerving loyalty of all the members of the building committee, their hearty and always unanimous co-operation in all the plans decided upon, and their free gifts of time and effort in carrying out these plans. Then he called upon everyone present for a short talk. Nearly all responded and all the addresses were full of faith and optimism. Miss Lucille Thompson, accompanied at the piano by her sister, Miss Avis, gave several pleasing violin solos and Mrs. Floyd Mercer sang a beautiful hymn as a closing number.

The building committee is now through with its work and will ask, at the official board meeting tomorrow evening, that it be discharged. The members are: Floyd Mercer, chairman; W. B. Kirk, Geo. Staub, R. P. Jodon, Lee Kaster, John M. Ray, Homer B. Miller, Mrs. Effie Crawford, Mrs. E. H. Learned. Messrs. Jodon and Miller were unavoidably absent. Others present were: Rev. C. A. Cole and wife; A. B. Heacock, chairman of the official board, and his wife; O. L. Kilborn and wife; Mrs. R. P. Jodon, E. H. Learned, Mrs. Geo. H. Staub, Mrs. John M. Ray, Mrs. Floyd Mercer, Mrs. Lee Kaster, Mrs. F. L. Thompson, Misses Avis and Lucille Thompson.

'THE FLIRT' IS A CLEAN PLAY, AT T. D. & L.

Like a moth irresistibly drawn to the flaming candle, so were men drawn to Cora Madison; just a wee side glance from those coy eyes and the damage was done. Yet you couldn't blame Cora; it was as natural for her to flirt as it was to eat, but, like all her kind, there came a time when she had to pay the penalty for her indiscretions.

Booth Tarkington's story, "The Flirt," was one of the most widely read books in the country, and its entertainment value is greatly enhanced by its presentation in screen form. It was made into a magnificent film by the Universal Pictures Corporation, and will be seen at the T. D. and L. theatre today, tomorrow and Thursday.

There are few persons who have not had a heart-breaking experience with a flirt, because the species comes in both male and female form, hence there are few that will fail to understand the psychology of Mr. Tarkington's story, and, if they are not now in the midst of a similar experience, to thoroughly enjoy each minute of the performance.

Universal casting directors spent many weary weeks in conning lists of players in order that each character might be fittingly portrayed. The role of Cora Madison is portrayed by that popular star, Eileen Percy, with Helen Jerome Eddy as the plainer sister, who is the direct antithesis of "the flirt." George Nichols, whose excellent work in pictures has won him a widespread reputation, is seen as the father. Others in the all-star cast are Nell Craig, Harold Goodwin, Buddy Messinger, Tom Kennedy, Lydia Knott, Bert Roach, Edward Hearne, Dorothea Wolbert, Lloyd Whitlock, and William Welsh.

The production was directed by Hobart Henley, one of the most skillful craftsman in pictures. New artistic heights in photography were reached in "The Flirt" and the scenes of American life are said to make all those who watch the picture feel themselves a part of the story.

NO FEDERAL TAX ON CITY NAME PLATES

Automobile club emblems and city name plates are not subject to federal tax, according to a ruling received from Washington yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell.

At the request of California automobile interests the question was submitted to Commissioner Blair by Collector Goodcell. The ruling declares that club emblems are usually attached by members of automobile clubs and other associations to the radiators of their automobiles and the city name tags or town plates are ordinarily used in connection with the regular state license plate.

Inasmuch as the emblems and plates do not in any sense contribute to the utility of an automobile, and further, that their primary use is a means of identification of the owner as a member of the club or city represented by the emblem or plate, rather than ornamentation, even though such emblems harmonize with the finish or beauty of the automobile, it is held that such plates are not subject to tax as automobile accessories.

JEROME ERICKSON BACK FROM TWO MONTHS' TOUR

Brings Back Collection of Educational Pictures From South

Jerome Erickson of San Francisco and Glendale, made a hurried call on various relatives and friends in this city yesterday, stopping enroute to the northern city on the completion of a two months' ocean voyage, during which he has travelled over 11,000 miles.

Mr. Erickson left San Francisco early in February on a voyage to New York City, via the Panama canal, for photographic and journalistic work. He stopped at Manzanillo, Mexico; La Libertad, San Salvador; Guatemala; Corinto, Nicaragua. After going through the Panama canal the next stop was at Havana, Cuba, and from there to Baltimore, Md., and New York City.

Some very severe snowstorms were being experienced at the eastern metropolis and Mr. Erickson was very glad to get back to California. He brought with him some of the most intersting collections of educational pictures that have been taken on this route.

In describing living conditions in Central America, Mr. Erickson states that they are very primitive. At its best he compares it with auto camping, without the auto.

Stopping at Manzanillo, Mexico, on the return trip, Mr. Erickson had the pleasure of escorting the McAdoo party to the ship.

Mr. Erickson will leave San Francisco again next week on the second lap of a journey which will take him to practically all the countries of the western hemisphere and the Orient.

She reluctantly accepted nomination because after her strenuous work as the Ebell president she desired rest, but finally yielded to the persistent urgings of clubdom.

A very interesting meeting of the American Legion auxiliary of which Mrs. Kaeding is president, was held yesterday. Some very encouraging reports were given, particularly from the Sawtelle hospital. It was stated that the boys there seem to be improving physically and that conditions at the hospital are in much better shape than before. The Glendale Legion boys are interested in putting in a rouque court at Sawtelle for the ex-service men there.

The committee for the serving of luncheon on April 11 at the Hut in Los Angeles will include Mrs. Mary Drake and Mrs. Wheelon. Chalmer Day and Mr. Baron of the Glendale Legion post were present and explained No. 7 on the ballot and told plans whereby the auxiliary could aid in putting it over. They also asked assistance in making their entertainment, which will be in the form of a fun revue by the Community Players on April 19 and 20, a success.

The Thimble club of the auxiliary reported a good bit of clothing made. Another meeting of this section will be held in two weeks. The clothing is for the needy families of ex-service men.

JERRY JETER HAS BIG AUDIENCES ON SUNDAY

The big Jerry Jeter tabernacle at East Broadway and Cedar street, seating 3,000 people, had good congregations afternoon and evening, Sunday.

Mrs. Jerry Jeter spoke out clearly on the great Bible personality, "The Holy Spirit," showing by the Scriptures the mission of the Holy Spirit. His coming to convict man of sin, cleansing him of sin, and to receive the baptism of the Holy Ghost one must put away sin, showing by the Scriptures how man may grieve the Holy Spirit and resist him, and quench the spirit of God.

Jno. 14:26, a Teacher; Presence, Ps. 139:7-8; He, the Holy Spirit, is everywhere, searches all things, showing how one must repent of their sins if they would have the Holy Spirit come into their lives; and without Him men are dead, that is, pertaining to righteousness—and without Him, though you are a member of the church, you are not in Christ. She emphasized Rom. 8:9-10.

The evangelist, Jeter, lined up the devil in many of his agencies before the large audience in the evening, after showing by cartooning the different faces men and women carry around with them, and how Christianity changed these faces.

He spoke of the five rounds the devil had with Jesus. The first round, the devil tempted Him, saying, "Make bread out of stones, if you be the Son of God." Next, "Cast thyself down from the pinnacle"; then he promised Him worldly honors if He would fall down and worship him.

The Evangelist showed that the devil was more than an influence—rather, a real, personal devil.

Then Christ's betrayal and crucifixion, and His coming forth from the hades, having overcome the devil and death.

The evangelist announced that there would be no services Monday, but that on Tuesday night he will produce an oil painting with Mrs. Jeter at 2:30 each afternoon.

Mrs. Jeter at 2:30 Tuesday.

BROADWAY CENTRAL TRACT FORMALLY OPENED APRIL 4

The formal opening of the Broadway Central Business tract, which is the site of the old Glendale sanitarium on Broadway in Glendale, will be held tomorrow, and judging from the many inquiries that have come in from various sources and the actual reservations that have been made to date, the entire 38 lots in the tract will be disposed of in a few days.

This property, according to Guy M. Rush, is in the midst of the big $2,000,000 building program that is being carried on by those interested in the development of East Broadway. The new sanitarium being erected at a cost of $600,000, and the new school, for which permits totaling a like amount have been issued, as well as the $400,000 hotel at the corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway and the Security bank building on the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway, are all close to this tract. Numerous other store buildings are under way and these bring the total well over the two million mark, which represents almost two-thirds of the total building activity of Glendale today.

"I have been in close touch with realty conditions in Southern California for more than twelve years," says Mr. Rush, "and I have yet to see a greater opportunity for quick profits than is offered the investor in Broadway business property in Glendale and the tract which we are selling for the Glendale sanitarium is priced so far below the prevailing market prices that even greater profits should be made, I expect every lot to be disposed of within ten days."

Doty L. Anderson of 118 North Louise street, who is employed as office clerk at the Glendale Taxi company's office, spent Sunday in Glendora as the guests of friends.

LEGION NEWS

For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of Justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.—Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion.

Concerning War Orphans

Have we forgotten our war orphans? As long as seven years ago we had responded to the appeals for aid for European children, left fatherless by the war.

In our own country war orphans have been discussed but little, and that there should be many of these youngsters in orphan homes has been a fact hard for us to grasp. But on a recent visit to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans Home in Knightstown, Ind., Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, national president, found 47 tots of varying ages, from babies to 14-year-olds, whose fathers were World war veterans. This is but an indication of their numbers, and there must also be taken into account the needy children who live at home with their mothers who are war widows.

The plan for a census of orphans and adoption of them by auxiliary units is very close to Mrs. Hobart's heart. It was approved by the recent national executive committee meeting. Mrs. Donald Macrae, jr., of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was named chairman of the committee, and members were Dr. Helen Hughes Heilscher, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, Mrs. Amos Norris and Mrs. Hobart.

In your community you may know children to whom the auxiliary can become a sympathetic mother, in the broader sense, and this committee will add a very important link to the unit's humanitarian work.

ART ASSOCIATION EXHIBIT WINS APPRECIATION

The picture exhibit and lecture by K. L. Lillani before the Glendale Art association Sunday afternoon at the public library on Harvard street, was enjoyed by about fifty members and friends of the organization.

The speaker emphasized the sacredness of art and the fact that the east was the cradle of art and religion and that they developed side by side, art being an expression of spiritual impulse. He holds the real mission of art to be sacred and the greater the exaction the greater the response. Art springs, he declared, from self realization and the desire for self expression. It is a very spiritual thing.

Several of his paintings were on exhibition; one, which he has never released before for exhibition purposes being his interpretation of the Christ. Another picture of great interest was his portrait of the Persian poet Tagore, under whom he studied philosophy. This too, might be an ideal portrait of Christ, so refined and spiritual is the face.

Lillani does not sign his pictures with his own name, but instead subscribes "Ora et Labora" which signifies that they are a labor of love. It is his claim that only in that spirit should the artist create. He is a resident of Hollywood.

Paradoxical though it may seem, many a man who declares his opinion has none.

RAIN FAILS TO STAY DANCE OF THE K. OF C.

Rain did not seriously interfere with attendance at the Knights of Columbus ball which was held Monday night and a great success. About 150 dance lovers tripped the light fantastic and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. It was quite informal, there being no special dances nor prizes offered. Ostroup's Orchestra furnished music so good that it was besieged for encores.

The next K. of C. dance will be given in about two weeks. On Wednesday the regular meeting of the organization will be held in the club house at which time delegates to the state convention at Sacramento will be elected. The convention will take place May 5, 6 and 7, and will be largely attended by Glendalians.

SACRAMENTO TO BE MINING HUB

[By Associated Press]

SACRAMENTO, April 3.—Centralization of the mining industry of central and northern California in this city and co-operation in the development of the vast mineral resources of the northern half of the state, as well as in Nevada, are the objects of the formation of a mining department by the Sacramento chamber of commerce. For nearly half a century after James W. Marshall discovered gold at Colma on January 24, 1848, Sacramento was the active mining center of the west, and the civic organization intends to revive the activities of that period.

Steps will be taken to have the state mining bureau removed from San Francisco to this city, held to be the logical location for it, as Sacramento claims to be the hub of the great mining districts of California.

A remark carelessly dropped doesn't always fall flat.

BOY SCOUT CAMP COMMITTEE HAS SESSION

Rotarian Body Decide to Buy Haynes Canyon Site

Members of the Glendale Rotary Club boy scout camp committee and Rotarians who are sponsoring this project met for breakfast and a business session this morning at the Glen Inn, when it was decided to exercise the option to purchase Haynes Canyon for a camp site.

The Boy Scout Camp committee, which includes J. G. Huntley, chairman; W. E. Hewitt and Val Hollister, reported on investigations of other canyons in the Sierra Madre range and recommended the choice of Haynes Canyon. Plans were discussed for the purchase and financing of this camp site, which comprises about 80 acres. This canyon is in the mountains back of Tujunga and is at the base of Sister Elsie. The committee decided to exercise the option held by them and complete plans for the purchase.

Members of the Glendale Rotary Club will finance the purchase. The camp is to be open at all times for the boy scouts and will be particularly popular for their week-end camping parties. There is a running stream of mountain water going through the property, which is very beautiful with its abundance of live oaks, sycamore trees, etc. There is a cabin on the site. This will be remodelled for temporary scout camp headquarters.

The Rotarians present at the meeting this morning included Dan Kelty, Arthur Dibbern, Wm. Hunter, Wm. Tanner, Jack Huntley, George Karr, George Bentley, J. I. Wernette and Roy L. Kent, president. Mr. Benner, boy scout executive, was also present.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF EAGLE ROCK CITY

CAREFUL BURGLAR RE-LOCKS DOORS AFTER VISIT

Lumber Co. Is Visited by Thief Who Has Real Regard for Property

The burglar who breaks in, helps himself, and then carefully locks up when he leaves is the newest curiosity in our midst. Yesterday mroning, when Emil Swanson, owner of the Eagle Rock Lumber Co., located on the corner of Park and Central avenues, arrived at his office he discovered that he had been visited by just such a thief. He noticed that various business papers on the desk had been shuffled over and left in some disorder. But upon going to the safe Mr. Swanson found it as tightly locked as he had left it at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon when he went home. When he opened the strong box, Mr. Swanson found that the unexpected visitor had taken away with him what little change was left therein, for the early business Monday morning. This amounted to $4.22. Just like any other office burglary—papers scattered, money gone—but there is a difference. This burglar, conscience-stricken, or to protect what was left in the office from the next trespasser, or merely considerate, had carefully relocked everything before going upon his burglarious way. Both doors of the safe, both combination and key were fastened securely, when Mr. Swanson arrived Monday morning, and the key was back in its usual place under a box on top of the safe. The combination was written on the safe door, and if his eye detected it, that might explain how the intruder opened one of the doors, but unless he blundered upon the key, hidden under the box, all the facts in the case were left to make it appear that someone in "the know" opened the strong box.

"Someone evidently needed carfare, and that is about all they got," Mr. Swanson said.

The burglar evidently went in through the rear door of the office, for the key had been punched out and lay upon the floor when Mr. Swanson entered through the front door yesterday morning. But the courteous thief had even locked the rear door with his own pass key, on the outside, when he left the office. A burglar who has such a considerate way of carrying on his occupation is deserving of more than he found, it would seem. Mr. Swanson was rather amused at the gentlemanly manner in which the work had been done. This burglar evidently did not put much stock in the old adage about not locking the door after the horse is stolen.

No suspicion is advanced by Mr. Swanson as to who the responsible burglar might be.

Crossland Brothers Open Wall Paper Business Here

Announcement is made elsewhere in this issue of the opening of Crossland Bros., importers of fine wallpapers and dealers in paints, at 225 East Broadway.

"We are new in Glendale but old in business," said R. A. Crossland, in speaking of his coming to Glendale. "We toured the state from one end to the other, and found no place that looked so good to us as Glendale.

"We expect to buy a home here and make Glendale our permanent abode. I have been in the paint and wall paper business for 28 years and I have always made it my plan to give my customers service regardless of whether they buy from me or not, and we invite anyone having trouble along the paint or wall paper line to consult us. It will cost nothing. We expect to carry a full line of Acme paints, varnishes, etc., and our line of wall paper will be varied and the best made," concluded Mr. Crossland

The Crosslands are here from Calgary, Alberta, Canada, and are delighted with the change of climate, and the good prospects of developing a large business.

ANNEXATION IS STAY TO WORK OF TRUSTEES

Quiet Session Is Held Because of Small Issues

The board of trustees held a quiet session last night, there being many small issues to be considered and cleaned up, but few new projects to be undertaken before Eagle Rock is definitely annexed to the city of Los Angeles.

Several persons, spurred to impatience by the rain which fell yesterday and Sunday, appeared to request speedy action on various street improvements under way.

A number of written communications were received and discussed. R. L. Woodhouse and J. C. Juett requested a permit to improve the northern unimproved portion of Peyton avenue, under private contract. They asked to be allowed to grade the street to the official grade, and construct a sixteen inch curb. The permit was granted.

Mrs. E. Hamilton submitted a tentative map of the tract west of College View avenue, at the head of Sycamore, known as tract number 6523, and requested the establishment of the grades of the new streets in that district, particularly Galpin drive. The city engineer was authorized and instructed to establish these grades.

Grace H. Logan of Salt Lake City, was represented by a written communication in which she requested that the zoning ordinance on lot number twenty-four be changed so that a bungalow court could be erected thereon. At present this lot is in the residential zone, and Mrs. Logan wishes to build a bungalow court there for income as well as for a home. No action was taken in this matter as it was thought advisable by the trustees to leave this matter to the Los Angeles administration.

A slight discussion arose over the question of improvements to the city hall grounds. Now that the sprinkler system is in, it was suggested by several of the trustees that a lawn and shrubbery be put in. No definite action was taken but the plans submitted some time ago for the landscape gardening work by L. R. Stevens were looked over. Godfrey Edwards, when asked by the board regarding the length of time to elapse before Los Angeles can take over Eagle Rock, stated that the officials of that city would probably allow as much time as necessary up until June 6. In this time the "mystic circle" can be made more comfortable and several other improvements made.

THE MARKETS

[By Associated Press]

NEW YORK, April 3.—Prices rallied briskly in the latter part of today's stock market after an early period of heaviness resulting from renewed attacks by short interests on special issues. Secretary Hoover's decision that the present business boom was on a solid foundation, combined with a material easing of call money rates, encouraged buying for the long accounts. Sales approximated 1,250,000 shares.

Further liquidation by frightened investors imparted a reactionary tone to the opening prices in today's stock market. Lackawanna railroad dropped 1 1-2 points to a new low record for the year, and Phillips Petroleum yielded one. Initial sales of crucible, Kelly Springfield, Rock Island and Transcontinental Oil were made at fractional concessions. Short covering operations caused slight improvement in Studebaker, Union Pacific, New York Central, Sinclair and Chandler Motor.

Buying support made its appearance in some sections of the list during the first half hour and gave the market a steadier tone. Chandler, Austin Nichols, American Can, Chino Copper and American Agricultural Chemical preferred extended their early gains to between 1 and 1 3-4 points. Northern Pacific, Baldwin and Allied Chemical gained large fractions. Motor accessories were heavy, Stewart Warner dropping 1 1-2 and Stromberg Carbureter one. American Smelting, American Tobacco "BB Virginia Iron, Punta Alegre Sugar and Great Northern Ore all lost ground. Foreign exchanges opened easier, demand sterling dropping 1-2 cent to $4.67 1-8 and French francs yielding six points to 6.57.

Inability or unwillingness to meet margin calls sent out after yesterday's sharp break caused some of the early heaviness. Short covering operations were induced in spots by the appearance of fresh buying power but the general market presented a ragged appearance during most of the morning. Toward mid-day the whole list again turned reactionary in response to the heavy speculative offerings of some of the oils and other industrial leaders. The Pan-American issues broke 3 points or more and California Petroleum, producers and refiners, American Can, Anaconda, Lima Locomotive and General Electric dropped 1 to 2 points.

Call money opened at 5½ per cent.

Members of the Junior Music club will appear in Mrs. Braasch's musicale. Refreshments will be served. This meeting and musicale will take place in the kindergarten room of the Central school, on April 6.

CHICAGO HAS TWO REFORM CANDIDATES

CHICAGO, April 3.—(United Press).—After the quietest city election campaign in its history, Chicago voters went to the polls today to decide between William E. Dever, democrat, and Arthur C. Lueder, republican, mayoralty candidates.

Both candidates ran on "reform" tickets.

The collapse of the machine which kept Mayor Wm. Hale Thomp in the mayor's chair from 1914 to 1923 cast a decided lull over the political horizon.

With the indictment of several of the leading figures in the machine for grand larceny, in the alleged looting of the school board funds of more than a million dollars last year, its power was broken.

"Bill" Dever, the "shirt-sleeve" candidate, was a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting.

PICNIC DAY VISITORS MAY DISCUSS TWO CROPS OF POTATOES PER YEAR

Due to the long growing season available in many parts of California, there is ample time in some districts to grow two crops of Irish potatoes each year. However, growers who are now producing two crops a year have had considerable difficulty in getting a satisfactory stand of plants in the second, or fall crop.

New potatoes from the spring crop are usually used to plant the fall crop, and these do not sprout very readily. This has often resulted in fields containing only 50 to 75 per cent of a stand. Recently, the division of truck crops of the University of California, was requested to investigate this matter by the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau. Work has been started at the University Farm at Davis to devise treatments that will make it possible to obtain a perfect stand in the fall crop potatoes.

Visitors who attend the annual Picnic day, April 28, at the University Farm, will have an opportunity to discuss these matters with the potato men at Davis and to inspect the field experiments now under way.

There is no peace for the would-be peacemaker who butts in.

L. A. RAILWAY CONTEMPLATES CHANGES

Requests Trustees to Send Committee to Discuss the Matter

The Los Angeles Railway company is contemplating several changes in the Eagle Rock service as evidenced by a written communication read before the board of trustees at the regular meeting last night. This communication, from G. J. Kurtz, general manager, requested that a committee be appointed to meet with him at his office at a convenient time in the near future to confer on this matter. Trustees Taylor, Bergsvik and Osborne will form the committee.

PETER L. FERRY WINS ST. WORK

Peter L. Ferry proved to be the lowest bidder for the street work proposed to be done on Florida street and Lucile Way, when the report of bids for this work was submitted to the board of trustees last night. Mr. Ferry submitted a total bid for the street improvements of $11,315.72.

Some people would growl about the weather if it rained silver dollars.

ANNEXATION VOTE CANVASSED BY TRUSTEES

Shows Measure Was Carried by 297 Votes in Official Count

Trustees Mattison, Curtis and Taylor, comprising the committee appointed by President of the Board Osborne to act as tellers to canvass the returns of the recent annexation election held on Tuesday, March 27, presented their report before the board of trustees last night. The results announced were a total vote of 1925 ballots cast, with 1107 in favor of the proposed measure and 810 against it.

A resolution was then made and passed upon by the board to the effect that Eagle Rock City be consolidated with the city of Los Angeles, and that all property therein should be consolidated and subject to taxation equally with the property of Los Angeles in all matters relative to the improvement of the city.

It was further resolved that the city clerk of Eagle Rock be directed to file a certified copy of these minutes with the city clerk of Los Angeles.

U. S. NAVY IS HANDICAPPED SAYS ADMIRAL SIMS

[By Associated Press]

PASADENA, April 3.—Rear Admiral William Snowden Sims, U. S. N., retired, before several thousand citizens here today at the California Institute of Technology, last evening, said:

"The matter of placing defenses is purely a military problem and should be worked out by experts and communities and citizens using their influence to break down decisions of the military board in order to have army bases placed to commercial advantage are selfish and unpatriotic."

Admiral Sims characterized the action of congress in cuting down the navy forces from 125,000 to 87,00 as "purely asinine." He also referred to "a certain Californian" who is "gum-shoeing" about Washington telling "dreadful stories of Japanese menace in particular localties."

"At the present time," asserted Admiral Sims, "congress is spending the huge sum of $300,000,000 a year to support a navy which would go down to defeat at the hands of a fleet 100 per cent equipped, and they are spending that money in just this way merely because they think they are pleasing the voters."

NEWS AND VIEWS OF BURBANK AND ITS ENVIRONS

PUT ON YOUR EAR PHONES AND HEAR THE BURBANK H. S. MUSICIANS THURSDAY NOON

Burbank is to be advertised in the very best style imaginable Thursday noon. Wednesday night the entire town will gather at the Edison building to swing along a proposition to advertise Burbank and Thursday noon the Burbank high school glee club and orchestra will give a practical demonstration of front page publicity on radio waves.

The high school musicians will broadcast their music from the Times radio station. The glee club, under the direction of Mr. White, always gives an excellent program, as also does the orchestra. Long ago they registered as the solidest kind of a successful advertisement for the Burbank high school; and schools and churches, since the first days of the Pilgrim Fathers have been one measure of judgment for a town, so now they will register for the town.

The better schools a town can tell about, the more anxious will people be to locate in that place. For this reason the broadcasting of the good music of the Burbank high school Thursday noon will be one of the most welcome publicity features in the new campaign; although the high school musicians themselves are not singing for that purpose. The programs are to be given to bring a little joy into the noon hour of a fagged, ragged, hustling business world and "wash from the soul a little dust of every day life."

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST SCRAP BOOK CLIPPINGS

"To a Wild Rose" (Edward MacDowell).

Edward MacDowell was born in New York, December 18, 1861. He died January 23, 1908, at the age of 47. It is said his is the most prominent name in music composition in the United States.

His musical education began when he was about 8 years old, under the instruction of a friend of the family. His creative faculty was shown early in youth when his books were covered with drawings. He wrote verses, fairy tales and prose.

When he was 15 he went to Paris with his mother, where he began the study of piano and composition. After studying here for two years he went to Germany. When he was 19 he began to teach.

He married Miss Marian Nevins, an American girl, when he was 23 years old, and four years later returned to the United States. He located in Boston in 1888. After eight years here he went to New York as professor of music in Columbia university. Because of failing health he resigned his position in 1904 and died four years later from a brain disorder.

"Elegie" (Jules Emile Frederic Massenet).

Massenet was a French composer, who was born in 1842 and died in 1912. He stands out as the greatest of all French composers of the modern school. His melodies are of a most beautifully pure lyric style that is unsurpassed by any other composer. His "Elegie" is a perfect example of the type and ranks as one of the finest songs ever written.

Nobility is its keynote. It is remarkable for its tenderness and grace and noble dignity.

He wrote French songs, grand operas and orchestral works. His best known grand opera is "Thais."

M. W. A. AND R. N. GIVE SOCIAL

The Royal Neighbors and Modern Woodmen of America had a delightful social time Monday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall. It was an open meeting and friends were invited. There was a short program and visiting and dancing for entertainment.

Messrs. Wood, Campbell and Williams were the members of the entertainment committee. For the program they asked Dr. V. P. Ervin and Mrs. Estelle B. Ervin to arrange for instrumental numbers. R. J. Rosenberg played a steel guitar solo. Mr. Willis of Dundee was the vocalist for the evening.

Jack Williams' orchestra furnished the music for the dancing which was enjoyed until midnight.

INVALID GETS EASTER GIFTS

Ralph Lehman, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wood, 935 Orange Grove avenue, enjoyed a happy Easter in spite of the fact that he is confined to his bed with a broken leg. The little 6-year-old boy had more attention than if he had not been in the hospital. Friends and relatives presented him with many springtime gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood and family went to visit him at Culver City and spent Easter with him and his mother, Mrs. Evalyn Lehman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wood.

COAL FIELDS YIELD IS SMALL

TOKIO, April 3.—Although immense coal fields exist in South Saghalien, the portion of the island ceded to Japan by the Portsmouth treaty, the output reaches only 140,000 tons a year. ## PUPILS TAKE DELIGHT IN CONTEST

Press Music Appreciation Course Arouses Deep Interest

The Music Memory Contest started out with Burbank school children showing great interest in the study of music appreciation. Monday morning many of the John Muir pupils brought records to be played on the school Brunswick for the benefit of the other children and for Miss Freyberger to explain the different things in connection with the pieces which would be helpful in analyzing them.

Many of the children visited the Burbank Music shop during the day today, and A. T. Drengsten played on his violin, the Elegie (Massenet). "To A Wild Rose" (MacDowell) was played for the children by Miss Mildred Clayton and Mr. Drengsten accompanied her on the violin.

Wednesday the Burbank Music Shop will give a concert consisting of the first ten in the list to be studied, at the John Muir junior high school following school hours. In case of rain the concert will be at 2:30, but if it does not rain it will not be until 3 o'clock. The concert is open to the public.

The program will be—

"Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn). Victor record, played by Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

People have been looking forward to the event for some time, and it will be a time for friendship as well as a business meeting. Officers will be elected at this time. All other engagements are expected to be cancelled for the church meeting.

BLAME RAIN FOR AUTO ACCIDENTS

More than one person felt unhappy about the welcome rain Sunday and Monday. More than one auto accident was blamed to the wet pavements and many near accidents kept drivers explaining to the patient public why they skidded along some place where they had no intention of going.

Burbank Police force only had two reports of collisions where the damage was noticable, out of all the number of "might-have-been-worse" ones.

Dr. Hollison of 239 San Fernando boulevard, going north at 20 miles an hour at Turkey Crossing ran into a Chevrolet touring car driven by Mrs. Grace Pottinger of San Bernardino, who was driving in the opposite direction at the rate of 18 miles an hour. Damage to both cars were $25 each.

A Standard Oil truck standing at San Fernando boulevard and Olive avenue, waiting for a chance to cross was run into by an Overland touring car because of the slippery pavement. The touring car was badly damaged.

RAIN MAKES PERMITS GROW

Building Permits Total $8400 For First Two Hours in April

When the building inspector's office closed at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, there was a total of $8,400 as the beginning mark for the first two office hours in April. Building permits have been issued to H. Fitch, dwelling, 916 Orange Grove avenue, $1900; Urania Fairburn, dwelling, Graham place, $1000; P. O. Hulbard, dwelling, 55[illegible] Magnolia avenue, $3500; Marion Felix, dwelling, Santa Anita avenue, $2000.

According to this start it will be an easy matter to surpass the record of April, 1922, when $67,480 was the month's record. The Realty board was delighted with the mark of $186,415 which seemed to be the March total, but at the last minute two more permits were issued, one to George Durenburger, 626 North Angeleno avenue for $3700, and one to E. J. Jackson for a ten room stucco duplex, 321 Roy Court for $6000. This made the total run to nearly two hundred thousand dollars.

The total for March, 1922, was $167,740. So March, 1923, outran the previous year by $28,375. This makes this year's and the first three months of last year amounts stand in this manner:

| | 1922 | 1923 |
|---|---|---|
| January | $ 67,515 | $143,81[illegible] |
| February | 215,510 | 170,40[illegible] |
| March | 167,740 | 196,11[illegible] |

Truths in Epigram

Depend upon it, the interests of classes too often contrasted are identical; and it is only ignorance which prevents their writing for each other's advantage.—Prince Albert.

Don't let your heart grow cold, and you may carry cheerfulness and love with you into the teens of your second century, if you can last so long.—Holmes.

D'ANNUNZIO COMES DOWN

D'Annunzio, often marked by a tendency to paint himself red and climb a pole, has descended from his lofty perch, and removed the decoration. He intimates that he is sorry he ever went up, and that it is his intention to posture no more. Clad in the becoming garments of humility, he will move with the common people. For the poet has heard the call of the years. The years bid him to solemnity. He has had his fling. As many others, he had given rein to his selfish ambitions, until they had lost their power to charm. Tardily he perceived the difference between notoriety and fame. So far as the antics of the poet were concerned outside the world of letters, they had brought him notoriety alone. We wonder he grew tired of it.

The lasting repute of D'Annunzio will rest upon his literary achievements. So far as the world has been permitted to know his personal character, this has presented an unpleasing aspect. Even in getting material to serve his purposes as a writer, he was guilty of brutality. The man who engages in a love affair so as to use the broken heart of a woman for copy, is not operating at a very lofty plane. Fine, indeed, would the product have to be to earn forgiveness for the producer.

As to D'Annunzio as a warrior bold, he was regarded as a poseur, and his activities at Fiume as mere monkeyshine. He was obsessed by the desire to have the world looking at him, but observing that the glance was not kindly, he has concluded to retire from the range of vision. His resolution will be applauded, and the hope expressed that he will stick to it.

ACCIDENTS INDUSTRIALLY CONSIDERED

According to a financial writer, the number of dearths caused by the automobile is likely to have hurtful effect upon the manufacture. He calls attention to the fact that forty pedestrians are killed each month in New York City alone by the machines. He might have added that in Los Angeles county, to March 28, the fatalities had been eighty-seven for the year.

It is doubtful if the evil industrial effect he predicts is to follow. People are getting accustomed to the spectacle of highway tragedy. It does not seem to make a deep impression. The most ghastly accident is soon forgotten. If the accident had been due to a particular form of carelessness, drivers continue as careless as before. The same risks are taken every day, quite needlessly. Drivers ignore the rules, not because they do not know them, but because the police are not looking. The idea of being careful for the sake of preventing disaster does not enter the minds of a class of drivers who numerically amount to a large part of the whole.

Accidents continue. The demand for automobiles grows more pronounced. The unskilled driver displays the usual baseless confidence, and the skilled driver tempts fate wantonly. People want to keep moving and to go swiftly. They desire to save thirty seconds of time at the risk of life, though the time is not of appreciable value. They are not afraid, nor even concerned. Each individual has faith in his own lucky star.

SLIGHTING A COMMUNITY

The batttleship fleet, long based upon San Pedro, is to be stationed at San Francisco. The submarine base is being transferred to San Diego. No reason that in any sense appeals to the landsman has been given for either move. The changes are said to be the result of the Rodman report. When Admiral Rodman was in command here he often announced his satisfaction with conditions. The report was exactly contrary to the views it had been his wont to express. The attempts of citizens to overcome the influence of the report hardly received the compliment of official consideration. The navy had been made many concessions at the port, being allowed the use of municipal property to great local inconvenience. In the belief that the submarine base was to be permanent, a large and very valuable tract of land was offered free to the government. Nothing availed, and so naval activities vanish from these waters. With the feeling of surprise, there is a trace of indignation.

The army instituted a balloon station close to the Foothill boulevard that connects a number of charming towns. The site was on the Baldwin ranch. Mrs. Baldwin offered the land for half the price that could have been realized at private sale. This sum was raised by enterprising citizens, so that the government had all the space it needed, in ideal surroundings, free of cost. Appreciation has been set forth in the removal of the men and material constituting the balloon school. Not that they have gone out of service, but that they have been sent elsewhere.

It may be said frankly that this sort of treatment is not pleasing. People who had gone out of their way to make representatives of the departments of defense comfortable, naturally feel not only that their efforts have been wasted, but that they themselves have been snubbed, and the most populous area of the state officially neglected.

HANDICAP OF POVERTY

People use the expression "handicap of poverty" in relation to themselves and others. They do this apparently quite unaware that poverty, far from invariably being a handicap, is an incentive and an inspiration. To the young and strong, it is not a handicap, but an advantage. It stimulates them to effort, and arouses the will to conquer, without which there is no victory.

Eight members of the cabinet have known the hard struggle due to lack of wealth, and to the early necessity for battling the world for a living. They are not all rich now, but they hold positions of dignity and fair remuneration. Their circumstances had lifted them so far above want, that to most of them, acceptance of political station represented personal sacrifice.

Similar is the history of most of the men now of importance in the world of big affairs. A large proportion of railway executives began in menial jobs. They worked with their hands. Most of the great merchants began with nothing. Many a banker had sold papers or run errands as a boy, perhaps aiding in support of a family.

The men born to wealth, and not rendered useless by never having known the need of toil, are exceptional. Roosevelt inherited fortune, and was not spoiled by it. Senator Lodge likewise. This did not prevent them from trying to do something real. Both succeeded, but each must be regarded as an exception to the rule.

The Gould family affords a striking instance of the ill effects of unearned affluence. Success is builded on character and brains. Youth, given also health, needs no other capital with which to start.

THE CASUAL CRITIC

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

"If you want to get a valuable criticism on a moving picture ask the butcher boy," said a woman of my acquaintance. "If he says, 'Aw, it's the cheese,' save your money and stay at home. He knows. Nobody has been able to make him see things through the eye of accepted standards. He knows hokum when he sees it and is not afraid to say what he thinks."

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

I was sympathetic for I had just been bunked into paying a big price for the sight of a picture that was truly "the cheese." My friends had been fearful of expressing their honest opinion lest it might be wrong or would not agree with the decisions of the trained critics.

Which reminds me of the story told about a certain famous English painter. He had done a picture of some partridges and when it was finished he called in his friends with the usual result, much gush and no help.

But after the friends left the butler came in and the artist asked his opinion. He looked at the picture and said at once that the artist had the wrong number of scales on the legs of the birds. Nobody else had noticed for nobody else, in all probability, knew how many scales a partridge should have on its legs.

People who never associate with anybody outside their own circle seldom know what is going on in the world; and they almost never are able to correctly estimate the character of their own friends.

A girl of my acquaintance escaped a disastrous marriage because a friend with sociological leanings took her to call at the house of a poor laundress. In the course of the conversation it leaked out that the laundress was in distress because the man to whom the girl was engaged refused to pay his laundry bills. The laundress had called time and again for her money, but the debtor always made a pitiful mouth and plead inability to meet his bills.

The light on his character was such that the woman who had promised to marry him broke her engagement and told him why. If it did him any good I do not know. The point is that the contact with a woman outside her circle corrected a girl's point of view at a critical time and saved her much misery, for the woman who did marry her discarded suitor ultimately divorced him.

If you want to know how things really work out ask somebody from the ranks of the people. They deal only in realities unrelieved by beautiful theories.

Mr. Brennan Defies Grammar

A. E. Brennan of Chicago defies grammar. Worse still he defied good usage when he writes, "I should use the verb have though the subject is apparently singular." However, he weakens at the end of his letter, for he closes as follows: "Am I correct and will you please give me the rule therefor?"

The sentence Mr. Brennan refers to reads as follows: "No doubt each of you has received a copy of the resolution."

Has is the right word. Each is singular grammatically, and should therefore be followed by a singular verb.

Thackeray wrote, "She (Queen Charlotte) gave Miss Burney a shabby pittance . . ." Miss Burney received, therefore, only a small portion or a meagre allowance, just a small charity gift, or dole. Originally, pittance meant an allowance of food, or a mess of victuals.

Queries

Daniel Herschcopf, New York City: "My friend and I have had a dispute with reference to a certain subject, and the argument has now dwindled down to the one issue as to whether or not the words despise and detest are synonyms. May I ask you to give your opinion on this subject?"

Answer: The New Standard Dictionary gives the following synoymns under abbor: abominate, despise, detest, dislike, hate, loathe, nauseate, scorn, shun. Despise means to look upon as morally or socially degraded; detest means to dislike or hate with intensity or abhor. The different shades of meaning are apparent.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

Look out, my boy!

I know it's a tempting straightaway.

Tempting you to step on the gas.

That is often the tendency of youth.

To look at the inviting straightaway and then open the throttle.

And the sensation is exhilarating.

The wheels spinning and the trees and houses seeming to fly past.

* * *

A little faster.

The old car will do better than that.

A little more gas.

Thirty, forty, fifty.

The speedometer advances until sixty shows.

Now she is doing something.

Sixty miles an hour.

Nearly ninety feet a second.

A little over three seconds to cover the distance of a city block.

* * *

That is speed.

A railroad train on a prepared track does no better.

Seldom as well.

And with speed comes exhilaration like that of wine.

The pulses leap, the eyes sparkle and the road rolls up like a swift moving ribbon.

* * *

But there's a curve in the road.

No chance to slow down much.

It takes a considerable pressure of brakes to stop a car moving at sixty miles.

So we stop as much as we can and take the turn on two wheels neatly.

And the car rocks, swerves, sways and then rights itself.

A close shave but no accident.

* * *

It was the merest chance there was not a spill.

And a spill would have meant death.

But we avoided the spill and now the accident is dismissed.

After all, life has many close shaves.

It is made up of them.

And at the next straightaway we step on the gas again.

* * *

We will watch closer for the next turn in the road.

A little careless the last time.

But not so again.

Speed is not dangerous with a clear eye and a firm grip of the wheel.

The road is marked and everything indexed.

So all that is necessary is to keep the old boat under control.

* * *

Toot!

There's a whistle.

A crossing only a hundred feet away.

A hundred feet is a long distance if you are walking.

Plenty of time to do a lot of things.

To take our bearings.

Calculate distance.

Make measurements.

* * *

But at sixty miles an hour we have run that hundred feet in a little over a second.

And a second is not a long time.

Tick! tick! tick! moderately said.

That is a second.

Not much time to calculate or measure or estimate.

* * *

Crash!

Who could have conceived such an ending.

A wrecked motor.

Smashed bodies lying under it.

One body thrown fifty or sixty feet.

The end of a careless day.

The scream of a whistle and the screeching of brakes and the grinding of wheels.

* * *

Pleasant skies. Rare flowers. Green trees. Fragrant air.

Life thrown away as a child might throw away a flower petal.

Songs of the Poets

The Little Ghosts—By Thomas S. Jones Jr.

Where are they gone, and do you know
If they come back at fall o'dew,
The little ghosts of long ago,
That long ago were you?

And all the songs that ne'er were sung,
And all the dreams that ne'er came true,
Like little children dying young—
Do they come back to you?

INTELLIGENCE IN THE THEATER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE first object of the theater may be to divert and amuse. Indeed, most theatergoers have this in mind.

And amusement has its place. Human nature needs relaxation. It needs laughter and entertainment.

It is very easy, however, for the theater, if it is managed solely with this end in view, to slump into something distinctly second rate.

Amusement is like sugar or salt. A certain amount of it flavors life agreeably. Too much of it easily passes into disgust.

Surely once in a while a play should appeal directly to the intelligence. This does not mean that it should fall into the classification of "highbrow," by which we usually imply something boresome and uninteresting.

Surely the intellect has its passions, its enthusiasms, its thrills, its delights, its tragedies, and its ecstacies quite as much as the body.

After all, man is a spirit, even though he cannot deny his body.

One of the plays of this season struck me as being absolutely unique, as being a play appealing directly to the mind.

If we could have taken off our bodies and sat down in our naked souls, even then we would have enjoyed it.

It is the play called "Pasteur," one of the two Guitry plays produced this season.

The character of Pasteur was interpreted by Henry Miller, one of our modern actors, with the very finest sense of values.

That which this play did, and which not one play in a thousand does, is to give the impression of reality. The audience actually saw Pasteur. The character, the ambition, the struggles, the hopes, and the triumph of the man came right over the footlights. It was history and biography made real.

It was more than that. It was a human being recreated before our eyes.

There was no story, none of the conventional tricks of the theater. It was just a section of life.

And, after all, the most interesting thing in all this world is life.

There was not a woman in the play. The sex appeal was entirely absent.

There was romance, but it was the romance of a career.

There was conflict, but it was the conflict of intellects, the new and daring mind battling with minds armored in prejudice.

There was crisis and suspense, but it was the same kind of thrill the surgeon gets from a successful operation, the lawyer from his legal triumph, or the orator when he dominates an audience.

There was climax, but it was the climax of a great soul, of a man who had done his work and wrested the laurels of his fame from an unwilling world.

Our bodies, of course, are always with us, and they are not without their perpetual interest, but there are times when we get a little tired of them. And for those who want a vacation from the flesh, and who really enjoy an occasional plunge into the waters of pure spirit and intelligence, this play is a marvelous refreshment.

It is a sample of what the theater can do, but alas! does entirely too seldom.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

REMINISCENT

[Chicago Evening Post]

Much as we deplore the situation which has developed in the Ruhr, apprehensive as we are for its possible consequences, yet we cannot forget that its occasion is the failure of Germany to make good her obligation, voluntarily and enthusiastically incurred when she devastated northern France.

She went singing and shouting to that task of making a wilderness where once had been forests and orchards and vineyards, of creating ruins where cities had flourished. America helped to check her in that work and to drive her out of regions in which she had no right but that of might. Since then she has whined and groaned over the demand that she pay for the damage done in her abandoned hours. Had she met that demand honestly, there would be no Ruhr invasion today.

But if there is anything this country can do to persuade France that she can obtain her just dues by some less costly and perilous method, we believe it should be done. If we can avert the dangers which threaten Europe and the world as a result of the program to which France now stands committed, then it is to our interest, and it is our duty, to take whatever steps will accomplish this end.

We must keep in mind, however, that France is entitled to two things: First, a guaranty that fair reparations will be paid; second, assurance of security against a repetition of the crime of 1914.

Germany has shown that her word is not a guaranty which can be accepted for the keeping of any agreement.

If the reparations question were to be submitted to neutral arbiters, what reason based on experience has France for believing that if Germany accepted the impartial award she would back acceptance by performance?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

A young doctor ended a "spending orgy" by taking chloroform. The money he had been scattering about so lavishly, was derived from the habit of writing checks without funds to back them. The doctor's father had been making the checks good, but seems to have about reached the end of patience.

HENRY JAMES

The theory that the doctor had fallen a victim to narcotics forms a complete explanation of his hectic later career, and its climax. His fate affords an incentive for the opponents of illicit drug traffic to strive all the harder. To those already enmeshed by the web of indulgence, this episode will convey no lesson. They are not subject to reason. It is useless to talk to them. Moral suasion is expended in vain on a subject that is devoid of any quality to respond, or to be moved.

That a man of education, equipped to enter upon the practice of an honorable profession, would deliberately disgrace his people, exclude himself from the decent activities of life, and indulge in silly and spectacular criminal courses, does not seem probable. But after induction into the use of narcotics, any course, however debased and aimless, is probable. Deprive a man of his brain force, his bodily strength, his realization of his own soul, and ahead of him is nothing but ruin.

Philip Snowden has introduced in commons a bill for abolition of private property in England. The mere fact that such a measure could be brought before parliament is in itself significant. A few years ago the author of a scheme so radical would have been regarded as mad. Now he is looked upon as mistaken.

Of course, the bill will have no chance of passing, and debate will serve only to give the advanced socialists a chance for airing their views. They find such experiences enjoyable. It is not probable that they expect to convert anybody.

English land conditions doubtless call for reform such as never will be needed in this country. That there are vast estates tied up as individual pleasure grounds, and mostly producing nothing, is an economic fact that in course of time will have to be modified. However, a measure abolishing private property is not expected to be the method.

Representative Johnson of Kern county wants a law putting debtors in jail. He won't get it. His bill has been smothered.

Mr. Johnson is sadly behind the times. He ought to take a day off and devote it to reading Dickens, who was ahead of his own times.

In Colorado they paroled a murderer after he had served eleven years of a life term, the term having been arranged against the will of the jury to hang him. He had killed two persons, only one of the victims having been concerned in the quarrel. Now this prisoner is back in his cell for breaking parole terms. He was paroled in May. His threats to commit another murder were construed by the authorities as violation of the understanding.

The parole system perhaps works all right in spots. This is in the instances where reform precedes the granting of a parole.

After a Denver jury had convicted twenty bunko men in a bunch, it was summoned to appear before the grand jury and explain what it meant by acting that way.

In the long ago Denver used to be quite proud of its bunko men. That was when Doc. Baggs flourished, and sold bricks, and when Soapy Smith flimflammed the corner crowds. Still, even then occasionally a conscientious jury used to have to sting one of the swindling brotherhood, and so far as memory serves, never was called upon to explain.

The lesson of this is that an I. W. W. may talk too much for his own good.

Ku klux of Texas are said to have elected one of their number to the United States senate. The statement creates interest and will be duly investigated. If the facts are as alleged, the representative of ku kluxism will be kicked down the capitol steps, figuratively, and serve him well right.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Two army officers were talking the other day of General Whatshisname. He is, it appears, a stiff, sturdy, and unconventional old gentleman. His language is free and vigorous and his energy is geared high at all times. He had just taken over command of a division and had called the headquarters staff in to be talked to.

"And try to look like soldiers," were his final words. "Keep yourselves neat and clean. Wear your caps straight. A soldier looks like thunder when he lets his cap slip over one ear."

The general's own cap always rides an ear. It is never to be seen in any other position. At that precise moment his cap was barely hanging on to one side of his head. In defiance of his own regulations he had a large cigar in one corner of his mouth. The H. Q. staff giggled a little. The officers could not help it.

"I know what you're laughing at," said the general. "But lemme tell you this. When I get through making this division what I propose to make it I can wear my cap any damn place I please."

There's a good deal in that, too. It pays to dress well. It helps one sell himself to the world. A man who is worth 100 per cent in ability is never any the worse off for looking the part. Another who might not grade more than 80 can, nevertheless, look like a 100 per center by keeping his shoes shined and his trousers pressed, and making sure that his tie is an adornment instead of an accident. By the time the test comes he may have grown to meet it.

All of that is true. But it is likewise true that what is inside of a man counts in the long run more than what is outside. Yet the outside stuff helps the inside stuff to register.

TEACHERS SEEK UNIFORM EXAMS

[By Associated Press]

SPOKANE, Wash., April 3.—Recommendation of a uniform certification law governing examination of teachers in the four Pacific northwestern states is expected to be made to the Inland Empire Teachers' association at its annual convention here April 4 to 6.

At last year's convention a committee of twenty members, five from each state, was named, under the chairmanship of Dr. Freeman Daughters of the University of Montana, to investigate and report to the association.

"With a uniform law in force, the holder of a certificate in any one state could teach in any other state in which the law was effective," said J. A. Burke of this city, secretary of the Inland Empire association. "After adoption of a uniform law has been effected in the four northwestern states, it is hoped that other states will adopt the same requirements."

In addition to lectures by prominent educators of the United States and the usual sectional conferences of teachers of various subjects, entertainment features have been arranged by the program committee.

A rousing time is apt to occur just before breakfast.

SUPREME TEST FOR PERCY HAUGHTON

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, April 3.—There never may be an accurate and final way of deciding whether a coach makes the players and the team or the team and the players make the coach. There are many examples and a number of opinions to support each side of the argument.

What results Percy Haughton accomplishes in producing a football team at Columbia ought to go a long way in shedding some light on it. Haughton is, by reputation at least, the foremost football coach and authority in the country and he is taking over football at an institution where, as far as material and spirit are concerned, football hardly exists.

Out of an enrollment of 8100 Columbia has little more than 1500 to pick from, when the ineligibles in the post-graduate courses, the students in the women's departments and the athletes who have served their three years at other institutions are eliminated.

Being in such a large city, Columbia has no chance to develop the college spirit that exists at an isolated university like Princeton, Cornell or Dartmouth, where nothing exists but the universities and their dependencies.

Haughton has nothing to start with, and the prospects of very little to finish with. If he puts Columbia on the football map like he elevated Harvard several years ago, it will be substatial proof that the coach has a major role to play in the development of football teams, if he isn't the whole show.

JACK SALYER IS SELKIRK OF THE EASTER SERVICE

Jack Salyer of 555 West Park avenue was out early Easter morning to join other high school lads on the way to Cemetery hill, to attend the much-heralded Sunrise services.

It proved a goodly hike to make in the gentle downpour which accompanied him, but Jack is no quitter and, having missed the bunch, he felt sure he must be late, so the steeper the climb, the more he speeded, for he was indeed five minutes behind schedule for the opening exercises at the cross.

"Oh, very well, there must be others like myself," thought Jack, as he spurted a bit on the home stretch; others who would find it impossible to get there on the minute.

He pictured the various groups around the flaming emblem, and mentally glimpsed the numerous organizations, the notables, the clergy, Frederick Warde and, greatest of all, the singing mayor himself—when, of a sudden, he rounded a turn and was there.

As Jack cooled off he viewed the landscape o'er—all his and undisputed—the Selkirk of Easter morn.

Jack was alone on Cemetery hill.

A SONG OF GASOLINE

Sing a song of gasoline,
A plane up in the sky,
A million noisy motor cars,
All dashing madly by;
When the day is opened
It's bing and bang and bing,
And all the noisy daylight through
It's whim and whang and whing.

A motor truck's unloading
Upon the street below,
Its engine is exploding,
And sirens toot and blow.
Forth shooting and backfiring
They whizz and race and roar,
And every day they're making
A hundred thousand more.

The motorcycle's roaring,
Its agonies I hear,
It's spattering and clattering
And bursting my poor ear.
An engine's racing madly
Below my window wide,
No wonder peaceful people
Are driven to homicide.

It sounds like making boilers,
From eight o'clock to noon,
The most of us are cuckoo,
The rest will all be soon.
And then from noon to midnight
They rent and rasp and roar,
And every day is noisier
Than was the day before.

Oh would the world of horses
Who ever wore their bones
Were on the street below me
All treading cobblestones,
Twould be the sweetest quiet
That ever o'er you stole,
Beside this din and riot
That harrows up my soul.

SANITARIUM LOTS HIT THE LIME LIGHT

Coincidently with the announcement of the acceptance by the state railroad commission of the plans for the electrification of the Montrose and Glendale railway between Glendale and Glassell Park, comes the announcement of the investment of a considerable sum by Los Angeles realty operators in Broadway property.

Charles G. Andrews and H. H. Cotton, well known Los Angeles business property men, have acquired a corner on Broadway, in the Broadway Central Business tract, the site of the Glendale Sanitarium, which is to be moved to make way for the fast-growing business section of Glendale.

According to Guy M. Rush who is conducting the disposal of this property for the Sanitarium, many inquiries are coming in from all sources and a goodly number of actual reservations have been made in addition to the purchase of the corner by the Los Angeles men, and by Walter Liemert of Oakland, who has come to Glendale and entered active business.

Liemert's purchase of the corner of Jackson and Broadway is significant in the fact that Jackson is a through street extending from Broadway northward direct to Bellehurst Park, which is the big residential subdivision activity of Glendale today.

It is expected that when the actual sale of the Broadway Central Business tract is opened that the few remaining unsold business lots will be bought up within a few days, as such property as this, located right in the very heart of the business district, will soon be at a premium.

RESULTS OF THE STRIKE FOR 44-HOUR PRINTERS' DAY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—At the close of the twenty-second month of the union printers' strike for the 44-hour week in commercial printing shops, 3,776 members remained on the strike benefit roll, it was announced at headquarters of the International Typographical Union here. More than 600 men returned to work under the 44-hour rule in the last month.

Out of 800 unions, containing 70,000 members, 100 unions are still affected in varying degrees by the strike. In February last year 281 unions were affected. Twenty-six shops made union agreements to end the strike in the last month. Benefit expenditures by the International decreased by $205,000 in February.

The cost of the strike in benefits to strikers has been $13,386,467.28 in the 22 months. The total collected from the membership, including the February strike assessment, has been $14,055,962.15. The union's chief fights now lie in Pennsylvania and parts of Canada.
